T&G CONSTRUCTORS
Hispanic Heritage Month

ORLANDO, FLORIDA—

T&G Constructors, a Hispanic Minority Owned General Contractor, founded in Orlando, Florida by Ricardo Gonzalez, David Grabosky, and Michael Wright, is currently experiencing remarkable growth and expansion across Florida.

Established in Orlando, T&G Constructors has cultivated a legacy that speaks to its commitment to excellence, diversity, and community engagement. One of its founders, Ricardo Gonzalez, a Cuban immigrant with over four decades of experience in the construction industry, has played a pivotal role in shaping the company's values. His Hispanic heritage has left a mark on the company culture, fostering inclusivity and celebrating the rich tapestry of backgrounds that comprise the T&G team. From winning the Don Quijote Award in 2004 for Hispanic Business of the Year to being President and Board Member of the Hispanic Business Initiative Fund, Rick Gonzalez continues to remain an asset to the Hispanic community.

With offices located in Orlando, Miami, and Delray Beach, T&G Constructors has become a prominent player in Florida's construction landscape. The company's presence in multiple regions reflects its dedication to serving communities throughout the state.

The owners, led by Ricardo Gonzalez, have been active participants in the Hispanic Chamber of Commerce, where they've championed initiatives that empower Hispanic-owned businesses. Over the past 36 years, Rick Gonzalez, has blazed a trail for small Hispanic businesses in Florida with his mentorship and commitment to providing opportunities for growth and development for small hispanic owned businesses by forming the Hispanic GC Alliance.

As T&G Constructors continues to grow and evolve, its founders remain resolute in their mission to promote diversity, uplift the Hispanic community, and shape a brighter future for Florida's construction industry
